

COMIN' ALIVE IN 2005

The football season is upon us, and the media are already making their predictions for the Heisman Trophy. A tradition that began in 1934, this award is given annually to the athlete considered the best player in college football. Instead of focusing on the Heisman, which is usually awarded to a skill player on offense, this issue's football pictorial will showcase promising players on both sides of the ball. Offensive linemen, defensive backs -- we even have a photo of a kicker! These young men are among the best of the best, so expect to see many of them sign pro contracts next year.
